OBITUARY

Environmentalist Ardis Walker dies

By Kathe Malouf
Kern Valley Sun

Ardis Walker, the Kern Valley's best known resident whose commitment to the preserving the environment predated today's popular movements, died last week at the age of 89.

Walker had held a number of careers during his life, including newspaper correspondent, judge, county supervisor, innkeeper, author of local history and accomplished poet. But perhaps Walker will best be remembered for his 40-plus years of conservation work. Ardis and his wife Gayle worked nearly 20 years to establish the Golden Trout Wilderness on the Kern Plateau.

Ardis Manly Walker was born in the mining town of Keyesville in April, 1901. His parents, William Brandon and Etta Mae Bole-Walker were both born in Kernville. Ardis was the third generation of Walkers to live on the Kern River. He boasted of his famous granduncle, Joseph Redford Walker, a well known scout and explorer and discoverer of Walker Pass. His uncles Newt, Tom, Phil and Jim were local gunfighters. Newt Walker, who Ardis affectionately called "My shootin' uncle" is said to have shot and killed two men on the main street of Havilah. One of the men had a long-standing feud with the Walkers and the other was a gunman hired to kill Newt Walker.

Ardis Walker

Ardis Walker attended the one-room school house in old Isabella. As a child he was fascinated by poetry. He said he used to walk home and think up his own rhymes, reciting them aloud. His love for poetry stayed with him through his lifetime.

Walker graduated with honors from the University of Southern California as an electrical engineer in 1927 and joined the staff of Bell Telephone in New York City.

In a 1982 Kern Valley Sun interview, Walker said "I enjoyed my time in New York, but was glad to know that I would not be spending the rest of my life there. I longed for the mountains and suffered a nostalgia for the hills where I was raised."

But it was while he was in New York that he met Edna Underwood, who he credited as his mentor for his publications of quatrains and poetry. "She told me that writing quatrains was like chiseling on steel; into it you condense a philosophy of a lifetime."

Walker completed his first book, simply titled 'Quatrains' in 1930, published by the House of Stockwell in London. The second edition of Quatrains was published in 1971.

After five years of city life, Walker returned to the Kern Valley. It was after he returned to the valley in 1932 that he met and began courting Gayle Mendelssohn, then a Kernville school teacher.

Walker often told the story that during his courtship to Gayle, she had a chance to go to the Mediterranean. When she asked Ardis for advice whether she should go, he encouraged the trip. But to make sure she would not forget him, he mailed love sonnets to her — one was waiting for her at every port. They were married soon after her return in June of 1937.

In 1932, Walker worked as a features writer for the Bakersfield Californian.

In the late 1930s, Ardis entered the world of politics. Like other endeavors, he was successful in the field. He served as judge of the First Judicial District of Kern County from 1938 to 1948. In 1948, he was elected Kern County

Walker was a champion of both environment and poetry

Supervisor, a term he held until 1952.

Gene Tackett, who served as First District Supervisor from 1978 to 1986 said he first met the Walkers while campaigning in Havilah.

"I had done my research of the area and knew that a man named Ardis Walker had served as supervisor from 1948 to 1952. But I figured that anyone who had been supervisor that long ago was no longer around," Tackett said. "That's when we (Tackett and his wife, Wendy) met the Walkers. We became really good friends. They were very supportive of me politically. Ardis had a big impact on me. He was one of a kind."

From 1953 to 1964, Ardis and Gayle ran the Kernville Inn, which later became the River-view Lodge, along the Kern River. After the sale of the lodge, Ardis returned to what he called his 'first love,' poetry. "Poetry is so shaped that it causes a special emotional response on the part of the one who reads it. Otherwise it is only a rhymed essay," Walker once said. "I like to think that I say something that causes people to feel that emotion."

Ardis and Gayle worked side-by-side on many projects, one of which was the formation of the Kern Plateau Association in 1940. Also in the 1940s, they worked to get a high school for the Kern Valley. In 1954, they were instrumental in creating the annual Whiskey Flat Days celebration. In 1960, they sat on a committee to gain State Park status for Red Rock Canyon. As a couple, the Walkers were also instrumental in forming the Kern Valley Historical Society in 1967.

Ardis and Gayle were honorary life members of the Kern Valley Historical Society and Kern River Valley Art Association.

Ardis's work in conservation received wide recognition. He was listed in the International Who's Who; was awarded the Service Award from the Kern County Fish and Game Protective Association in 1962; honored by the Kern County Board of Supervisors as "Citizen of the Year" in 1967 and by California State Senate in 1973, for his work for natural resources and conservation.

Ardis was awarded the National Wildlife Federation Award for his conservation work and in 1980, he was honored by Pacific Flyfishers as "an artist in conservation."

Ardis was one of the founding members of the Death Valley 49er's and a charter member of the Kern Valley Rotary Club, formed in 1962.

Ardis and Gayle didn't have any children, but "adopted" many Kernville residents. Two of those "adoptees" are Keith and Bess Pringle.

"Ardis was a kind person, but he was also staunch. If he believed in something, he didn't care if he said something to make you mad or not. If he believed in something, you knew it," Bess Pringle said of Ardis. "He was a super man, one you were glad to have known. But he was terribly lonesome after Gayle died."

Gayle died on Sept. 6, 1988. In many of his love poems and sonnets, Walker referred to Gayle as "his inspiration."

"Ardis and Gayle were both very precious people who did a lot for others. Ardis had a great sense of humor; he loved to tease people. And he hardly ever got mad," said his niece June Walker Price. "He was a very giving person," she said. During the past few months, Price said Walker talked a lot about being with "his Gayle."

Another close friend, Bill Jenkins, said he will remember Walker for his work for the environment.

Walker published many books of poetry, quatrains, haikus, history and love sonnets.

One book, "Love Harvest," a series of love poems, includes many of his poems written to Gayle.

Along with his niece, June Walker Price, Walker is survived by a second niece, Vivian Walker Miller of Woody, nephew Bud Walker of Bakersfield and three generations of great nieces, and nephews.

There will be no funeral service; a memorial service will be held in a few weeks.

Memorial contributions can be made to the Kern River Valley Museum Memorial Plaque, the Walker Endowment fund, or the Sequoia Litigation fund. All of the above may be sent in care of the Kern River Valley Historical Society, P.O. Box 651, Kernville, CA 93238.

OBITUARY

Friends mourn death of Joughin, pioneer rancher

By KATHE MALOUF

Kern Valley Sun

The Kern Valley has lost another pioneer.

Bill Joughin, whose name has been synonymous with ranching and developments in the Kern Valley for the past 20 years, died last week. He was 62.

Joughin touched the lives of many Kern Valley residents. Business acquaintances and friends were shocked and saddened by the news of his death.

Joughin was responsible for much of the growth of South Lake. But his projects also included Robinson Cove, Cortez Canyon, Cyrus Canyon, Longview and both the residential and mobilehome tracts in South Lake. He was planning a third residential subdivision in South Lake at the time of his death.

Because of his continued support of projects that helped the Kern Valley to grow, Joughin was often called on for donations of time, financial support or land. Most recently, Joughin donated two three-acre parcels of land in South Lake, one to the Kern Valley Hospital Foundation and the other to the Kern Valley Historical Society. Both are being used as fundraisers for those organizations.

That generosity that will be missed, said Dave Freeland, president of the Hospital Foundation.

"Bill had a big heart. He made generous contributions of his time, financial resources and support. He was a strong supporter of the Foundation. We at the Foundation are saddened by his death and my heart goes out to his family," said Freeland.

While Joughin may be best remembered for his developments in the South Lake area, his love for the land and ranching remained a major factor in his life. He was concerned about protecting the land, while still retaining his family's heritage pertaining to cattle grazing rights.

That combination was an important one, said Jim Crates, former Forest Supervisor of the Sequoia National Forest. "Bill was a beautiful mountain man. I'll never go into Big Meadow or Cannell Meadow and not think of Bill." Joughin was one of several who worked with the Forest Service put together a 2,400 acre purchase of land on the Kern Plateau in 1988. Joughin supported the purchase, saying it would preserve the beauty of the land for future generations.

Joughin: Friends, community mourn loss

Officer with the Sequoia National Forest who has worked with the Joughin family for more than 20 years, said Joughin's death would create "a great void in cattle and range management. And I don't know how we will make up for that void. Bill cared about the land and always wanted to do what was best."

Joughin had been labeled dynamic and influential by friends.

"You couldn't help but be influenced by Bill," said Jackie Anderson, who said Joughin was the third person she met in the Kern Valley 20 years ago. "His first, last and foremost thoughts were always the Kern River Valley. He was one of the last movers and shakers and I don't think we will see his ilk again. He was a true environmentalist and loved the land."

Tom McKinney said Joughin was always ready to respond to a need. "If you needed anything, Bill was the first to make sure your needs were met. Whether it was to install a cattle guard to keep cattle out of the campgrounds or give a dinner at his ranch to honor some project or person, it was taken care of. And most of the time, the receiver never knew where the gift came from, as Bill was always in the background. He was never the one to jump out and take credit for anything. In Bill's eyes, nothing was impossible. He had the can-do attitude and the impossible just took a little longer."

William Daniel Joughin was born in Bakersfield on March 2, 1929, but was raised in the Kern Valley. He attended South Fork elementary school, where one of his teachers was Grace Kissack. He attended high school at both a military school and Kern County High School in Bakersfield.

The Joughin Ranch was founded in 1870 by Arthur Cannell, who emigrated from the Isle of Man to the Kern Valley. In 1906 William D. Joughin, Sr., who was also from the Isle of Man and a brother-in-law to Cannell, took over the ranch with his wife Ethel. The ranch was expanded to include the Crane, Perry, Sydney, Robinson, Cook and Paherson ranches and homesteads.

In 1950, Bill Joughin, Jr. and his wife Roberta took over the ranch and continued the tradition. The ranch was again expanded to include the Diltz, Pallett and Alexander Cortez Ranches and the A. Brown Co. Today the ranch includes more than 10,000 acres in Kern and Tulare counties. It also includes more than 200 square miles of grazing permits with both the Bureau of Land Management and U.S. Forest Service. Joughin maintained more than 1,000 head of cattle in addition to a diversified business organization including the development of South Lake and commercial, residential and mobilehome subdivisions.

He is survived by his wife, Roberta, daughters Cathie Joughin Halle of Granite Station, Sylvia Hafenfeld of Weldon and Renee Joughin of Bakersfield and three grandchildren, Jessica and Eric Hafenfeld and Christoffer Joughin of Granite Station.

OBITUARY

Services held for longtime resident Barbara Albin

By CHRISTINE KOHN

Kern Valley Sun

A memorial service was held on Tuesday for longtime Kern River Valley businesswoman Barbara J. Albin, 67, who died last week.

Albin, the broker-owner of Wofford Heights Realty in Wofford Heights, died Friday at Kern Valley Hospital after a lengthy illness. During her 25 years in the Valley, Albin was twice president of the Visitor's Council, president of the Wofford Heights Improvement Group and organizer and president of the Valley's Board of Realtors.

But co-workers and family members say Albin will be remembered most for her sharp business mind and sense of humor.

Albin could remember intricate details of real estate sales that took place a decade earlier, said Judy Glenn, a real estate agent at Wofford Heights Realty.

And Goldie Tatum, a broker associate at Wofford Heights Realty, said Albin "could be a lot of fun, yet she was a businesswoman, and she looked out for her clients."

Tatum noted that Albin also would take care of her employees through special little gifts like personalized note pads and holiday parties.

"Quite often, she would call down (to the office) when she knew we were real busy," Tatum said. "She'd call down, and she'd say, 'I know you girls worked hard today, so on your way home, stop by (my house.)' " Tatum said Albin would have dinner or a treat ready for them.

Her husband of 26 years, George, remembered Albin's favorite song, "Bill Bailey."

"They used to call her the poor man's Sophie Tucker, because she would get up when we went to the bars, and Barbara could sing, and she could knock 'em dead without fail with Bill Bailey," George Albin said.

He also recalled Albin's love for fishing.

"Barbara loved to fish, too." They would go deep-sea fishing, "and she'd catch fish when nobody else would. And if they weren't biting, she'd say, 'I know how to start 'em. I'll just light up a cigarette.'" She would and the fish would start to bite, George Albin said.

Because Wofford Heights Realty was Albin's "love and she would always want it to continue to be open for business," Glenn said, Tatum will continue to operate the business.

Albin is survived by her husband, George, sons Keith W. De Laney of Long Beach and George Albin Jr. and daughter-in-law Alta of Downey, her mother, Josephine Faust of Hemet, granddaughter Kelly Ann (De Laney) Smith and niece and nephew Sharon and Daniel Boone of Sunland.

She was preceded in death by son, Craig.
