EL DORADO COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

KELSEY

Kelsey Cemetery Inscriptions

The Kelsey Cemetery is located in the town of Kelsey, El Dorado County, California, nine miles south from Georgetown and seven miles north from Placerville. Many residents from the early gold mining settlements of Spanish Flat and American Flat as well as Kelsey^E_A are buried here.

Among the most outstanding families in the development of their communities were the Siesenop and Roelke families from Spanish Flat and the Kelley family from Kelsey.

A few lone graves(which I will record as a group later) lying between these three communities are evidence of burials prior to the establishment of the Kelsey Cemetery.

James Marshall, the discoverer of gold at Coloma, was buried in 1885 in the Kelsey Cemetery, then removed in 1890 and buried beneath the bronze and stone monument at Coloma. No one is now alive who remembers the exact spot of his burial at the Kelsey Cemetery.

There are 127 marked graves and 45 unmarked. A few concrete blocks mark gravesites but no names are recorded.

The earliest recorded burial is that of David H. Chubb -May 14, 1861. If there are earlier burials they are among the 45 unmarked graves.

Mildred M. Davis

For anyone interested in research, the original deed, the result of a Sheriff's sale of the Roelke property at Spanish Flat is held by John Phillipps who now owns the property and a photostatic copy is in the Bancroft Library at the University of California.
