The Broadway (Clark) Cemetery

Whittier, California

PREFACE

The Broadway (formerly Clark) Cemetery is no longer known by that name but is now part of Founders' Memorial Park located between 12100 and 12500 Broadway Street in the city of Whittier, California. Citrus Avenue divides the park. The cemetery was covered with fill dirt and made level. It contained 926 burials-68 percent of them prior to 1910. The Whittier Park Department contacted over 2000 next-of-kin over a two year period regarding this cemetery and the Mount Olive Cemetery just across Citrus Street. The general consensus was that the property should be developed into a "quiet" park. The dead are still there, and their names are listed on a memorial at the park. The present park walkways follow the original cemetery paths. Relatives were offered the headstones, but most felt the stones were too large, so the Park Department stored them alphabetically at the Pio Pico Mansion on Whittier Boulevard at Freeway 605.

Original material concerning this cemetery was collected by Mary Van Manen, Elaine Thomson Davis, and Madelyn Schweizer Krug, and we are grateful for their contribution. We wish to thank Dorothy Heisey and Phyllis Benson for typing the stencils for this book. Also, special thanks go to Betty Pointer who mimeographed the complete book.
